

Athena SWAN BSMS

Brighton and Sussex Medical School (BSMS) aspires to be a great place to work and study for all. We believe it is important to celebrate the diversity of the inspirational women who work here. Tom Wichelow, a local photographer with a long association with the medical school, has produced a series of portraits of women at various stages of their academic and research careers within the school. We hope that by creating this book and displaying these photos in our buildings, we will help to raise the profile of women at BSMS and inspire existing and future students and staff to see that they too have a place here.
